

“Mock Hairpin Doily” © 2011 all rights reserved.

By Sherry Pence

This pattern is adapted from Sandra Hameed’s hairpin lace pattern:

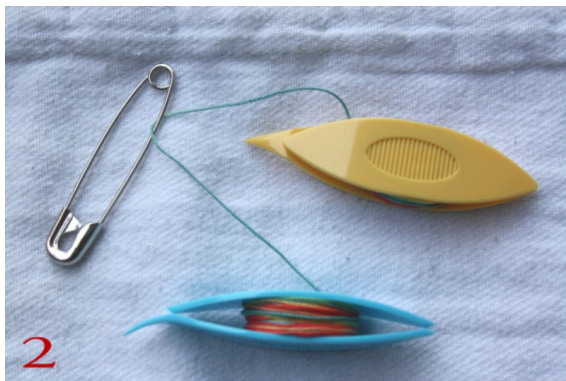

<http://www.georgiaseitz.com/classes2/hp/hameed.html>

Using Ruth Perry’s Tatted Mock Hair Pin Lace (TMHPL) technique.

For this project you will need two large picot gauges. I like to use credit cards. You will need two continuously wound tating shuttles with Size 20 tating thread, and a safety pin or paper clip.

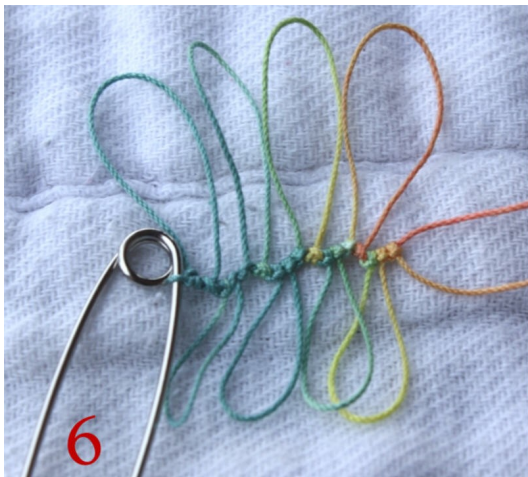

- 1.) Start with two shuttles continuously wound.
- 2.) Use a safety pin or paper clip to make a starting picot.
- 3.) Start with an unflipped stitch

- 4.) Use a picot gauge the width of 1 1/2". Your first three stitches will be unflipped and will look like this: 1p2

5.) Use the large (credit card) picot gauge measuring 2 1/8" to do the "UP" picot. This will be a flipped stitch and will look like this: p1

6.) You will continue this pattern until you have 24 down picots and 24 up picots.

6.1) If you look closely at the enlarged photo you will see that your stitches form a nice zigzag pattern consisting of 3 downward facing (unflipped) stitches and 1 upward facing (flipped) stitch.

To recap you will do 1p2(unflipped)p1(flipped) (X24)

8.) Attach to the starting picot. Make sure the smaller picots face inward.

9.) You will climb out with a mock picot the same length as the other large picots.

10.) You can take this opportunity to string a thread through the inner picots.

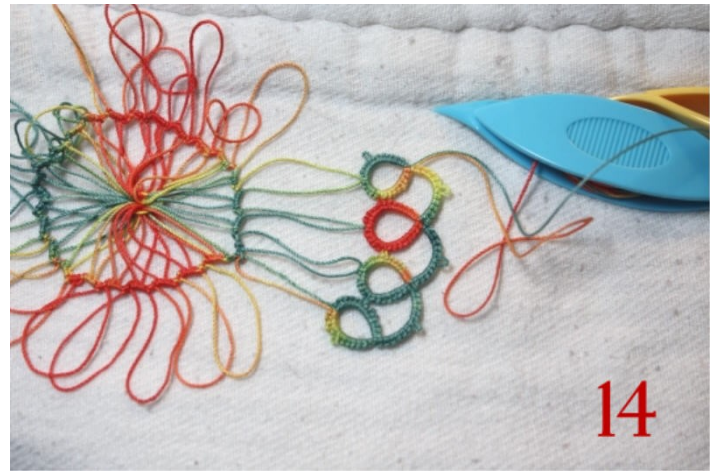

11.) and tie off.

12.) Climb out with a Split ring of 6p8/6p8

13.) Ch 6p6

14.) Reverse Work .

Ring of 8+(p of prev r) 6+(next long picot) 6p8
cl. RW

Ch 6p6 RW

Work your way around until you have a total of 25 rings.

To finish you can either hide
the ends or leave them to hang as an ornament.

Tatted with "Bell Peppers"

Hand dyed tating thread

If you liked this step by step pattern please watch for my next book coming out early 2012. "Branching Encapsulation" where I will walk you through an exciting technique that opens up a whole new world of tating possibilities.

Here is just a sneak peak of one of many patterns which will be included.

Customer Support: LadyShuttleMaker@Hotmail.Com

Blog: WWW.LadyShuttleMaker.blogspot.com

Tating Shop: WWW.LadyShuttleMaker.Etsy.Com